Email Information:

One thing to keep in mind, when asking questions it is to your benefit to include as much detail as you possibly can. Remember, it may be 12, or even 24 hours before someone reads your email. I'm always disappointed to respond to a student with something like, "I don't really understand what you're asking here. Could you please provide me with more details so I can better help". Often times you are best to try to include at least:

- Your name (I know this sounds silly, but if I just see the email address, it might be tough to know who belongs to the email address lovesToCode@gmail.com)
- The class number. Yes, I appreciate this sounds silly too, but realize that there are multiple people fielding your emails, just include this in the Subject Line to better help us
- Which chapter / page / exercise you are working on. The more specific, the easier it'll be for us to know exactly what's going on
- What you are attempting to get the computer to do
- Any input you are typing in as the user
- What you are expecting to see the computer do in response
- What the computer is actually doing
- Any specific error messages you are receiving (just saying that "I got a error box" doesn't help too much)
- Last, and probably most important, is to be sure to upload the work you have so far to the dropbox in Moodle. I appreciate that you may know exactly which line is causing the problem. However, it makes our lives so much easier to use the computer to troubleshoot on our end. Besides, sometimes errors in one line of code may not show until later in the program

Materials

A number of chapters from the textbooks listed here will be assigned to reinforce and expand on the concepts introduced in the lectures. You are not required to purchase the textbooks. All of them are available via the O'Reilly Library - <https://www.oreilly.com/library/view/temporary-access/>

- "Introduction to AGILE Methods" Sondra Ashmore and Kristin Runyan

Outcomes

Upon completing the course, students will be able to:

- CO-01: Analyze the software development culture and practices of an organization and develop a plan to increase effectiveness using current DevOps tools and practices.
- CO-02: Implement a build automation pipeline.
- CO-03: Provision and deploy a distributed application using automation tools.

Evaluation

Final grades will be calculated as a weighted average according to the following:

Activities	10%
------------	-----

Labs	20%
Exams	60%

Grading Scale

A \geq 90%

B \geq 80%

C \geq 70%

D \geq 60%

F < 60%

Assignments

NOTE: The nature of CS is that the material builds upon itself. Therefore you are responsible for all practices/concepts after they are introduced. For example, we teach commenting early but expect you to write comments from there on, regardless of whether the directions explicitly ask for them or not.

Activities:

Activities will allow you to apply and extend concepts and techniques covered in class.

Projects:

The Projects let you apply what you've learned in lecture and in-class activities exercises.

- Must be completed individually unless stated otherwise.
- Advice and guidance will be available from the instructor.
- Don't wait until the last minute: no help is available on the day an assignment is due.

Exams:

Exams cover the fundamentals of the material covered. They test your ability to:

- Define terms and describe concepts.
- Apply techniques covered in class.

* Course Policies and Resources

Late Policy:

No late work will be accepted. Also, because all work will be submitted via Moodle, the due date/time is determined by the server NOT your machine. If you are even 1 second late, the links will turn off and you won't be able to submit your work. You are strongly encouraged to submit early and often.

Student Responsibilities:

By signing up for this online course, you are taking a big chunk of the responsibility for learning this material into your own hands. The consequences of this include (but aren't limited to):

- Be prepared to devote up to 20 hours per week for this course
- Reading all information presented. This includes not only the textbook, but the content in Moodle and email messages.
- Be aware of due dates. Late work will not be accepted.
- Keep up and do not wait until the last minute to complete the work
- Actively reading and working through the materials provided in the course. If you get stuck on your lab, probably the first question you'll be asked is, "Have you worked through the material from Moodle?"
- Taking the initiative for seeking help. Be it through email, Office Hours, or the discussions forums. Please realize that there's no way I can look in your eyes and tell if you are getting something or not (we very well may never see each other in person!)

My assumption is that you are all busy people. You have jobs, families, friends and attempt to lead a normal life outside of school. With that in mind, you will still be expected to meet the same standards for this course and to master the material.

Generative Artificial Intelligence (Gen AI) is not allowed in any coursework.

In this course, the use of Gen AI is not allowed; all coursework must be original and created for this course. Use of Gen AI will be treated as plagiarism. The University of West Georgia grants one semester hour of credit for work equivalent to a minimum of one hour (50 minutes) of in-class or other direct faculty instruction AND two hours of student work outside of class per week for approximately fifteen weeks. For each course, the course syllabus will document the amount of in-class (or other direct faculty instruction) and out-of-class work required to earn the credit hour(s) assigned to the course. Out-of-class work will include all forms of credit-bearing activity, including but not limited to assignments, readings, observations, and musical practice. Where available, the university grants academic credit for students who verify via competency-based testing, that they have accomplished the learning outcomes associated with a course that would normally meet the requirements outlined above (e.g. AP credit, CLEP, and departmental exams).
